

A new chapter!

We are pleased to announce the appointment of our new Managing Director Ryan Woodcock as of Thursday 1st July 2021. Ryan has been an integral part of the AJM team for the last 15 years and has played a key role in AJM's expansion and growth over the last three years.

This appointment sees the culmination of a two-year succession plan to change the operational management of AJM from shareholder led to independent management led. Ryan will have overall control and responsibility of the day-to-day operational management of AJM.

AJM was established in 1997 by founder, and our current managing director, Anthony Boyle. Anthony, along with Daniel Boyle who is currently serving as director, will take on their new roles as group chairman and group chief executive officer respectively. Anthony and Daniel will focus on the future longevity and success of the group whilst exploring new opportunities within the new build construction sector.

Peter Jennings our current financial director will also take on his new role as group chief financial officer.

Despite the COVID pandemic AJM has experienced strong growth over the last 18 months. We have strengthened our financial position and have a healthy pipeline of new contracts ahead.

Our new managing director Ryan Woodcock will be releasing a statement in due course.

“ I’m very proud to be taking on this role, AJM are an exceptional company and have a great team. We’re moving into a very exciting chapter. ”

Thank you for your support.
